

“Don’t waste your time on lousy movies anymore!” I used to be a movie nut to kill time; then I realized that maybe watching the classics is the best choice. Such as My fair lady, it has become one of the must watch lists, for winning eight Academy Awards, including Best Picture, Best Actor, and Best Director. No matter how old you are, you will be having lots of fun and gaining differently each time re-watching My fair lady.

In this film, I think about the gender issue apparently appear in their era. While the professor Higgins saying “Why a woman can’t be like a man?” he’s tired of being in the surrounding by Eliza’s noises. In my opinion, he is really a stubborn man who doesn’t believe there is a need for living with women. However, how about a man? Can a man be more like a woman? What is the definition between men and women? Especially professor Higgins totally doesn’t understand Eliza and himself in the beginning. He had no idea about what was producing in his mind: he started to get familiar with Eliza’s existence and like this pure heart girl.

Until the end of this film, Eliza truly became like an upper class lady and decided to marry Freddy; both of Eliza and Professor Higgins suddenly understand the relationship between them: they need each other. Even though I can’t predict they get married or not, I know the changes between Eliza and professor Higgins are due to Eliza’s independent and innovative thinking, which influenced the aspects of Professor Higgins.

In addition, I think of my personal experience before. I had learned Japanese and traveled in Japan for a while. I met two Taiwanese in Japan, we made friends soon. Therefore, we hanged out together with some Japanese. My Japanese accent sounds like from Tokyo, yet my Japanese friends thought I had lived in Tokyo and treated me better than my Taiwanese friends whose accents were not sounded from city. I am lucky. I thankful for the opportunity to learned “perfect accents” toward languages. Like Higgins said” Why can’t English?” If people can learn better accents, why not? But why this society can apply this accent system to distinguish human beings’ social level?

To make an accent beautiful can make your words poetry, I believed in. From accents and behaviors, people can easily guess another person’s background, education and accomplishment. On the other hand, it’s not that bad to speak other accents or behavior differ from what the environment expected. Just people should remember: what is the most significant to you and what you want to be like? “Looking for what you want!” is the simpler but also most difficult thing in the world. In a word, My fair lady is a wonderful film inspired me a lot! I will definitely pass this masterpiece to my coming generations!
