Dad and mom, this is a complain letter for you!

Since last summer, I told you I got a new boyfriend; you two didn't take it on your minds seriously. Later on, I keep talking about him to you; you two still seem not so much care about. Until last Chinese New Year, I brought him back home after your permit. Daddy and mommy, you finally realize that I am really having a relationship with another man. Therefore, you start to say we maybe not so suitable for each other, encourage him to go back. Do you know it hurts not only him but also me a lot? I just want to declaim about: love is nothing about nationality, nothing about the age. Maybe it's merely a puppy love; however, it's a true relationship. Also, I am not a child anymore, hoping you understand about this. You sent me far away home since I was 12, and now... after 6 years later, you begin to think I am not mature enough? Please, let me handle my own life and respect my decision.

by dear daughter.
